

OREGON NO. 1 DESTINATION FOR MOVERS

Oregon retained its position as the country’s top moving destination according to United Van Lines 39th annual national movers study, which tracks state-to-state migration patterns. New to the 2015 inbound list was Washington, which ranked No. 10 with 56 percent inbound moves. Officials with the country’s leading mover said this year’s data reflect longer-term trends of people moving to the Pacific West. Michael Stoll, economist and professor at the University of California, Los Angeles, attributes part of the popularity for Portland and Seattle to their boom in the technology and creative marketing industries, along with a growing desire for outdoor activity and green space. “The aging Boomer population is driving relocation from the Northeast and Midwest to the West and South, as more and more people retire to warmer regions,” Stoll observed.

MEDIAN SALES PRICE LAST 10 YEARS

NEWS IN BRIEF

- Eight years after the housing crash, 10 percent of all Seattle-area homeowners with a mortgage owe more than their home is worth while 25 percent have less than 20 percent equity in their home and would have difficulty in selling and buying another, according to a new study by Zillow. Almost a million fewer U.S. homeowners were “under water” in the third quarter of 2015 compared to the same period last year. The improving rate means those people may be able to sell or refinance their homes before mortgage interest rates rise, as they are expected to do in the coming weeks. Las Vegas has had the highest negative equity rate in the country for the past four and a half years, and Kansas City and Cleveland, with 16.6 and 16.8 percent negative equity respectively, are not far behind. San Francisco and San Jose are the only large markets where less than five percent of homeowners are underwater.

- King County home sellers are seeing an average of a 48 percent profit since purchase, according to RealtyTrac’s October 2015 U.S. Home Sales Report. King County was tied for seventh in the poll with Travis County, Texas; and Contra Costa County, California. Six of the top 10 spots were held by California markets. Seattle’s median home prices rose 10 percent from a year ago in October, according to RealtyTrac. Here are RealtyTrac’s top 10 counties where sellers, on average, sold for the largest percentage profit since purchase:

1. Alameda County, California: 75 percent gain
2. Santa Clara County, California: 61 percent gain
3. San Mateo County, California: 58 percent gain
4. San Bernardino County, California: 52 percent gain
5. Multnomah County, Oregon, in the Portland metro area: 51 percent gain
6. Denver County, Colorado: 49 percent gain
7. King County: 48 percent gain
8. Travis County, Texas, in the Austin metro area: 48 percent gain
9. Contra Costa County, California: 48 percent gain
10. Orange County, California: 46 percent gain
